DR. AND MRS. JOHNSON ENTERTAIN THE SENIORS

Give Brilliant Reception at Home on Campus as Final Hospitality to Graduates

Another of the long looked forward to moments in the life of the Winthrop girls came to the seniors Thursday evening when President and Mrs. D. R. Johnson gave their annual farewell reception. It was with thrills and excitement that the 750 Seniors donned their evening gossamer and wended their way through swaying trees and Japanese lanterns to the home of their beloved "Dele" and "Mrs. Dele".

The rooms were tastefully decorated with California poppies and larkspurs, their garlands of the colors of gold and blue. The Winthrop orchestra, directed by Miss Lucie Landon, rendered lovely music throughout the evening.

The guests were received in the long living room where assisting Dr. and Mrs. Johnson were the following: Miss Margaret Morris, president of the Senior class, Dean and Mrs. J. P. Kinard, Miss Katherine Kinard, Mrs. J. P. Kinard, Jr., Prof. and Mrs. J. T. Brown, Miss Jill Brown, Miss Ruth Caffie, Mr. and Mrs. C. Paul Workman, Miss Jess McFarland, Prof. J. W. Thomson and Miss Maci Duncan.

Passing on through the hallway and drawing rooms, the guests were greeted by groups of professors and their wives: Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Bonland, Dr. and Mrs. G. C. Mance, Dr. and Mrs. P. H. Edwards, Dr. and Mrs. O. T. Pugh, Dr. and Mrs. R. Z. Thomas, Prof. and Mrs. W. L. Margraves, Prof. and Mrs. W. L. Margraves, Prof. and Mrs. J. F. Thomson, Prof. A. L. Terrell and Prof. Wm. G. Barz.

In the dining room they were received by Miss Lucie Landon, Mrs. R. R. Bartlett and were served gold and white ice cream and mints by Miss Lucie Landon and Miss Helen China.

The table was laid with a hand-some cloth and in the center was a great bowl of Dorothy Perkins roses and larkspur, lighted on each side by gold and blue candles. Miss Margaret Morris, president of the Senior class, presided.

Food punch was served by Miss Margaret Jane Kelehan and Miss Lucie Landon.

Mrs. Johnson received in a gown of silver-toned georgette, headed in crystal and silver.

MISS MANNING WINS IN TENNIS Archery Contests to Feature Commencement Week

The curtain fell on our regular athletic activities Thursday afternoon when Mildred Newman, Sophomore, defeated Maudie Stephenson, Sophomore, by a score of 9-7, 6-3. The girls showed marked ability and the "blondie" a thrill that one gets only in a tennis tournament. Mrs. Ruth P. Bartlett was official referee.

The matches in the tournament will be played off Monday, May 31, when Sara Workman and Maudie Newman Seniors meet Maudie Stephenson and Mary Matheny, Sophomores.

Immediately following tennis tournament, archery tournament will be held on the athletic field. The following girls will participate: Nellie Edwards, Lenora Arthur, Nellie Allen, Della O'Neil, Stella Stevenson and Eliza de Sausse.

NEW YORK STUDENTS ENROLL FOR MASTER SCHOOL OF MUSIC

President Johnson announces that he has received a number of applications for admission to the Master School of Music from reputable points. During the week applications and checks covering expenses for the master school have been received from three ladies from New York city, who are coming here to study with Conal Quirk and Dorey Whitlampton. This is an indication of the fact of the national reputation of Messrs. Quirk and Whitlampton. President Johnson expresses himself as being gratified with the number of applications which are now coming in from these desiring to study in the master school of music.

DR. AND MRS. JOHNSON ENTERTAIN THE SENIORS

James Ivory Rice, Jr., distinguished South Carolina writer, and chairman of the South Carolina Commission on Education, was a visitor at the college Saturday, accompanied by his secretary, Mr. Archer, of Anderson. Mr. Rice called upon President Johnson and the members of the executive committee, and was permitted to visit the college, even for a few minutes. Mr. Rice has been interested in conservation for a number of years, and all the nation acquainted with all the state's resources.

PORTRAITS OF PRESIDENT AND MRS. JOHNSON PRESENTED TO WINTHROP BY SENIORS AND THE JOHNONIAN

WORK OF BRILLIANT YOUNG ARTIST, WILLIAM STEENE, OF NEW YORK, TO HANG IN LOBBY OF JOHNSON HALL—IMPRESSIVE EXERCISES AT UNVEILING

Each year it is the custom of the graduating class of Winthrop College to leave at the college some token of enduring value that will serve both as a memorial to itself and be at the same time cherished by the college. This year, through a happy coincidence of circumstances, the graduation class has been permitted to share in conferring gifts of unusual appropriateness: portraits of President and Mrs. D. R. Johnson, which will hang over the mantels in the lobby of Johnson Hall. The portraits are the work of an eminent New York artist, Mr. William Steene, and are the joint gifts of the senior class and the Johnonian, the Winthrop College newspaper. The contribution of the management of the Johnonian was from the surprise which has been created in the past few years of the life of the paper, the paper each year having had a small cash balance after meeting all expenses.

Neither the paper nor the Senior class acting alone could have presented such valuable gifts, but through co-operation of the two agencies, a memorial of enduring value and value has been made possible. The portrait of President Johnson is the second portrait of him which has been presented to the college, the first having been painted by Mr. E. H. Hodgson, artist of London, England, in 1921, and having been presented to the college by the student body of that year and the Winthrop Association. The portrait of Mrs. Johnson is the first of her to be presented to the college, and the Seniors and the management of the Johnonian were very happy to be able to include the portrait of Mrs. Johnson in their gift, she having been a constant source of help and inspiration to President Johnson during the years in his office. It is fitting that a portrait of her should be given to the college.

CLEVER CLASS SONGS MARK SENIORS' MARCH

Succession of Song Hits Characterize the Class as "They Go Marching"

Since no history is complete that records facts alone, the great old seniors, who have behind them some record that will reflect the ups and downs of our varied existence since the days of Freshman entrance, South Carolina, we believe, is preserved in our class songs that celebrate victory, tell of defeat, and that express the love and gratitude which we have for those who were dear to us.

To our big seniors, the class of '26, we dedicated our first musical attempt:

"Juniors! Juniors! We're wild about you!
Juniors! Juniors! You're wonders, 'tis true.
Faculty, students, the whole family
We love you, we love you, in everything you do.
We want you, juniors, to win every game that you play,
Fight hard to the finish and then we'll all say
That you are grand as can be,
And this you know we can see.
You'll get there yet, we bet."

The chief inspiration of our Freshman days was owed to a fever of homesickness which overtook us in March of 1921. Then it was that we turned to Dele with the plea for a few days' vacation, and came to the tune of "Home, Sweet Home."

"Through January and February at Winthrop we have stayed,
We have studied and studied and studied day by day.
A few days from classes will revive us again;
Oh, holidays, spring holidays, will not be in vain."

Mid classes and campus at Winthrop we have roamed,
Though it's ever so glorious, there's nothing we can do to do.
Oh, Dele! Oh, dear Dele, it would be a worthy deed
A few days' vacation is just what we need."

It was during our Sophomore year that we really made Winthrop "up and take notice." With all the vigor and vim of which we were capable, we cheered for:

"Cheer cheer for '26!
We are the blue and the gold.
We're here to make our name,
We have to make it here we're told.
Yes, Winthrop!"

Chorus is by Steene.
We're loyal and we're true,
And our honor defend.
We will fight to the end
For the Sophomore Class."

And—
Oh, Sophomores, we will down them,
Down them every one!
Oh, Sophomores, we will conquer,
Down them every one!

Down those old Juniors, Seniors, Specials, too, Fight for the honor of the golden blue!"

With lusty lungs, we encouraged our players on the hockey field:

Roll up the score, Sophomores, more!
Roll up the score, more, more!
Roll up the score, you have done it before,
So roll up the score, Sophomores, more!"

When basketball season began we cheered the Seniors with the following:

For when your guards start to weaken,
Your forwards fail to earn,
Your center is overworked
To win seems in vain,
The odds're not the bestest,
We'll be with you day!

Your team is full of guts,
And fight, fight, fight, ray!
Pass through the center
And throw one more good,
Old gold and black will hold, hold, hold."

The Seniors will fight 'em,
And roll up the score—
That's the spirit of '26!"

When the last game had been played, we doffed our caps to our Seniors and honored them with the song, "It Was then that we sang the melody ending with our famous 'As We Go Marching'."

Special Class, here's to you!
Special Class, you're true blue,
You are the best old sports,
When you play it's all yours,
And you would fight for you."

"Hah, hah!"
We cheer for the Freshman Class,
Garnet and gray supreme,
Just water coming out of that hell,
Makes you think you're in a dream,

VARIED MERRIMENT MARKS SENIOR NIGHT

Big Picnic at College Farm Marks End of Senior Week—Fourteen Plead "Guilty"

Thursday, "Senior Night," was celebrated by the class of '26 with all due economy and hilarity. Shortly after 6 o'clock the Seniors, clad in hiking togs, with blankets strapped across their shoulders, wended their way in groups to the college farm. While waiting for the entire crowd to assemble in the big meadow, the girls made merry with games and songs, until summoned to supper.

A delicious supper, consisting of fried chicken, baked meat, Brunswick stew, tomatoes, pickles and ice cream was served the guests amply and efficiently by Mr. Worley, Dr. Ray and their corps of assistants. After eating all that they possibly could, and more than they comfortably could, the guests went to the lower part of the meadow, where a huge bonfire was ready to be set off. Here, by the bright light of the bonfire, the Seniors gave clever stunts. Mr. Brown told a ghost story. Then came the solemn moment of the roll call, when each girl, hither bound, answered "guilty" or "not guilty" of engagement and matrimonial intentions. Fourteen were "guilty"—but their names are a Senior secret!

After the roll call different individuals were called on for stunts of various kinds. Ellen McQuarrie and Annie Lou Beckham gave clever impersonations of several faculty members. Fanny Golden, Annie Laurie Atkins, Dr. Ray, Emily and Geraldine Smith, Anne and A. G. Haselden, S. C. Workman and Fanny Golden recalled the Senior musical comedy by repeating some of their popular numbers. Mr. Powder gave a humorous song.

As the fire died down, the Seniors sang old favorite songs. When bedtime came they retired to the huge tent, prepared for them, to spend the night. In the wee small hours none of them surely shall break the college to give the Juniors the rising morning greeting, which they so readily accept.

Several faculty members enjoyed the picnic occasion with the Seniors. These included Dr. and Mrs. Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Bartlett, Mrs. M. C. Mance, Dr. and Mrs. Worley, Mrs. and Mrs. Powder, Mrs. White and Miss Bradford Kelly.

What WOMEN Are Doing

Two-fifths of the women wage-earners in this country are under 25 years of age.

Of the more than 7,000 certified public accountants in the United States only 18 are women.

More than half of 2,000 women in this country are practicing lawyers, with 5,000 more studying law.

Eighteen women were among the 310 electors recently chosen to elect the president of Finland.

More women are employed as stenographers and typists than in any other gainful occupation.

Only one women's occupation—needlework—was represented at the Columbian Exposition in 1893.

One out of every three women in the United States drives her own car or knows how to operate one.

A woman suffrage bill passed its second reading without opposition in Bermuda, but was lost in committee.

A woman suffrage bill recently passed by the Italian Chamber of Deputies will not go to the Senate for the present.

IDEALS IN ATHLETIC COMPETITION FOR WOMEN'S COLLEGES

(By Ruth P. Bartlett, in April South Carolina Education.)

Athletics has long been recognized as one of the strongest forces in the life of a school, a college or an individual for the development of school spirit and character. As a strong personality can be an influence either for good or for evil, so a force as strong as athletic competition can be an influence for good in a student body or likewise an influence for evil.

This is why the question of inter-collegiate athletics has arisen. This has so many times been used as an influence for evil that women's colleges are standing back and thinking it better to keep out of inter-collegiate competition altogether than it is to get into something which they might later regret.

Inter-collegiate athletics are used for financial gain, for advertisement, for developing dishonesty and poor sportsmanship, and even hatred between schools, colleges or individuals. It is better they were never introduced in. When they can be used for high purposes—the training of character—pride in one's school or college—loyalty—when a college is able to take defeat without blaming the referee or claiming foul play on the part of the other team—simply acknowledging they were up against a better team—when the victors can take victory with modesty—and not use it as an occasion for disgraceful celebration—then the value of inter-collegiate athletics, as a force for good, would stand out without question.

I would like to see a few of our Southern colleges for women develop this high type of sportsmanship to the extent that they could work out, say, triangular inter-collegiate competition—dividing the Southern women's colleges into groups of three—for field hockey and basketball, the schedule to be so arranged that no college shall play more than two outside games—that these games be kept absolutely free from all commercialism, that the games be not open to the general public—but controlled by the colleges playing. If a group of Southern colleges for women could so establish inter-collegiate athletics for women they will have contributed a worthy and vital force to the student life of our women's colleges—and set an example to the college world. Until the time comes when we are able to establish inter-collegiate athletics on high principals, it is better for us to content ourselves with inter-class games—using these contests as a training field for the larger contest of life itself. I believe there is no finer nor stronger force for developing refined womanhood—women able to lead and to set a high standard of living—than through athletic competition. But let women grow slowly in this until they are able to avoid the mistakes many of our men's colleges have made. Let the athletically inclined college woman show to the world that her training makes her none the less a lady—but more of a woman. May the college woman so use her athletics that when she takes her step into inter-collegiate rivalry she will have developed such high standards that she will be an example to the world.

Do's and Don'ts of Winthrop Etiquette

It is considered incorrect to visit after 7 o'clock p. m., unless you prefer a special reason for so doing to some authority. This applies until 9:50, when social life again begins. The reason for this intermission is to furnish a period for rest and reflection before the mad rush of the final half hour of the night's activities.

It is the custom here to gather in meetings to discuss subjects which are under discussion, to conduct investigations or to take such exercise as swimming, bowling, and gymnastics. These meetings continue from 8:30 to 4 daily, and it is advisable to attend two or three a day.

Winthrop society is to be commended upon the sensible customs it has adopted and the standards it maintains. A supreme example of such customs is that which demands that everyone shall attend meals three times a day.

There is, too, a certain time to be on the promenade (front campus). A few may be seen there at any hour of the day, but the crowd gathers between 4 and 6, and again after supper from 6:30 to 7. It is remarkable to observe the dispersing of the promenaders at the end of these periods.

Do not appear on the campus before 6:45 a. m. or you will find yourself there alone, an embarrassing situation.

Do not go away from the campus without leaving some information as to your whereabouts, as great alarm and trouble result from failure to do so.

Above all, if you would be a success socially in our community, take your meals in the dining room. Occasional visits to the cafeteria are permissible and tea-time gatherings there are quite the thing, but for meals the dining room is approved by the elite. Be sure and arrange to take your meals there when you enter the college.

"As the gum-chewers say, how come, Ted?"

"Well, to stoop to the vernacular, for a moment, the editor gave me the gate this morning."

"Indeed? If I may borrow a slang term, Ted, that is certainly tough on you."

"It is, Bill. As a flapper would put it, you said it."

"By way of a little metaphor, Ted, have you anything else on deck?"

"No, Bill. The truth, in simple, outworn language, is that I thought you might have something up your sleeve."

"I see you believe in the platitude that a friend in need is a friend indeed."

"True, Bill, and you're the friend. As the man in the street would probably ask, can you give me a tip?"

"Well, there is Joe Brown, editor of 'Moonlight Tales'. He told me this morning, in editorial cast, that he was gunning for a good love yarn."

"My thanks, Bill, heartily. To complete your strenuous figure of speech, I'll try to get within range. Meanwhile, as the Rotarians say, behave yourself and watch your step."

"I'll try, Ted. As the Babbitts have it, so long."

LITERARY SOCIETIES IN REGULAR MEETINGS

The Winthrop, Curry and Wade Hampton Literary Societies held their regular meetings on Saturday night, May 8, at 6:30.

The subject chosen for study by the Winthrop Society was the life and works of Octavius Roy Cohen. The following program was carried out:

The Life of Octavius Roy Cohen—Sera Allen.
Piano Solo—Mary Wall.
Here Comes the Bride, a story by Octavius Roy Cohen—Marion Turner.

At the conclusion of this most entertaining program the society adjourned.

At the meeting of the Curry Society the study of the life and works of Edna St. Vincent Millay made a very interesting program. The program rendered was as follows:

A Talk on Edna St. Vincent Millay—Miss Remer.
Selected Poems of Edna St. Vincent Millay—Margaret Duckett.
Piano Solo—Beatrice Brown.

The program for Wade Hampton Society dealt with the life and works of Edwin Arlington Robinson—Ellen Manship.
Selected Poems of Edwin Arlington Robinson—Eleanor Hood.
Vocal Solo—Elizabeth Rose.

His Wife: Marjorie is very much put out because you won't let her marry the count.
Rich American Father: Of course, I won't! I bought her three dukes last year and they have positively to last her until spring.

First: "I thought the Prince of Wales was to be here."
Second: "Oh, he'll be right along now. 'Ere comes 'is 'orse," Harvard Lampoon.

Numb—What's a steam turbine? Dumm—It's what an Arab wears when he has a cold in his head.

EPIGRAMS TO MAKE YOU THINK

The sun of success never sets.
A truly busy man has no time for hushbodies.

Too much sympathy is apt to spoil the under dog.
Some people are too narrow minded to take a broad hint.

Nothing tires a man more than carrying a load of debt.
A man may have a lot of money but not much to his credit.

He who lives for himself, and sell alone, is a successful failure.
A soft answer turneth away wrath, but sometimes it comes hard. The experience we buy at bargain sales doesn't amount to much.

The people who never stop to think probably wouldn't think to stop.

One way to overcome being sensitive is to realize how unimportant you are.
Unfortunately the man who loses his temper usually loses something else.

There isn't much use turning over a new leaf unless you put a weight on it.

Plenty of folks have a good aim in life, but a lot of them never pull the trigger.

The man who stands on his dignity never gets so tired as he makes other people.

After we have worked for the best, the best we can do is to hope we'll get it and work on.

Kentucky bred
He was bred in Old Kentucky.
You could never guess his name; He wasn't black, he wasn't white, And so they called him Graham.

Lady (yelling in slums)—How low!
Gentleman in Gutter—H'to ya' self!

"A Good Bank in a Good Town"

SAFE SUCCESSFUL SECURE

THE HISTORY 37, 326

(Concluded from page one) outstretched to our dear Dobe. The charm worked, and we were given a "long week-end," lasting from Thursday afternoon until Sunday night.

Chapter II
"Old girls!" That is what we called ourselves in the fall of 1923, when the time came to return to college. It seemed altogether impossible to us that we could ever have been as "green" as these newcomers, the class of 1927. "But they look young!" we declared, shaking our superior heads. (Soon they were to be crowded and crammed with the facts and fancies of history!)

Most of our year as Sophomores was spent in looking forward to our Junior day; in doing away ideas for the greatest Junior Senior that Winthrop had ever had, and in storing sufficient funds for the great evening in our treasury. Ruth Galt, as our president, led the class on from one achievement to another.
All the wisdom of Sophomorehood was showered upon us. Among the French Revolution and the causes of the World War (and, incidentally, the history of English literature from Beowulf to Macaulay).

As the year of our Sophomore life in this class, we were happy in the expectation of glorious things to come the next year; our Junior-senior and our Freshmen sisters for we were to have them next year!

Chapter III

Jolly Juniors! How happy we started out in this greatest yet of college years. First, the class of Freshmen sisters! Weren't they adorable! Have you found yours yet? Everyone was in a commotion.

Pen meetings! Not to arouse pep, because that was not necessary. But meetings where we had to go to express our joy of living. A. C. Hasel-den, at once president and cheerleader, was the leader of our shop as it sailed upon the sea of Juniorhood.

English 12 and History 12 and all the other 12's held no terror for us.
We were too thrilled over our Junior year to be worried over passing.

By and by came our greatest of achievements as a class—the Junior-Senior reception. Long before the day arrived, our hands worked busily fashioning delicate flowers and garlands with which to build a "Fairland of Flowers" for the class of 1925. And when the day finally did arrive! You should have seen us. We were just as proud of ourselves as we could possibly be, and the Seniors all declared it was the loveliest reception that had ever been given. We felt important, the next morning, eating our breakfast in bed. Those sweet Seniors!

"Toward the end of the year came Faisy Chain rehearsals, for we were going to play for commencement this year and participate in this beautiful procession. And we shall never forget the night we walked proudly and self-conscientiously into the dining room with our Senior caps upon our heads. We just couldn't get the fassel in the right place, but we didn't care. We felt proud of ourselves and sorry for the poor Seniors sitting at the tables, for they were almost all weeping.

Then came commencement and more tears! This time we participated in the weeping and we were glad when it was over and we had come home. But somehow every time we thought about Senior privileges, we had a quiver of pride down our backbones, and although we had declared to the contrary, we were not ashamed when we got off at the home station with the academic insignia of a Senior cap set squarely upon our heads.

Chapter IV

Grave old Seniors! For the last time, the class of 1926 entered Winthrop in September, 1925. The last lap of our journey was begun. The leaders of all student activities were our numbers and, for the time, it seemed as though we were more or less in charge of things. Margaret Morris, as our president, seemed to us a guardian angel, directing the course of our harp-ies.

Senior privileges came upon us.
And, together with these, Model
Home and Training School. There had been wonderful experiences in more ways than one and we would take nothing for having had them.
We cherished as we entered Model Home, because we couldn't make house calls, but we came out at the end of our two weeks, having enjoyed every moment and having found that "where there is a will there is a way."

Training School left us with the same feeling. All our fears and nightmares over our first day standing before our class came to naught.
The children were dear and our superiors were encouraging to us even in the hour of our darkest need. We hated to see our last day come.

Possibly the greatest event of the year was our Junior-Senior Reception—the one at which we were the guests. Taken back to the day of our childhood, we enjoyed ourselves to the fullest. We hated to hear the orchestra play, "Home, Sweet Home," for we knew that this marked the end of our great and glorious Junior-Senior Reception.

And so, we have come to the end of our Senior year. Soon we shall be gone from the campus and our Winthrop life will be a memory—a golden one. In later years we shall look back upon the four years spent at Winthrop with a feeling of love for the institution and its surroundings. We shall always be thankful for the privilege of having spent these years when we are "Lost, lost in the wide, wide world."
SARA KING, '26.

DIPPY

Mary sat dreaming under the shady pines on back campus.
"Commencement actually here!"
she thought. "Only tonight and all will be over."

The cool breeze blew through the trees over her. All troubles and worries were far away. The evenings began, and, strangely enough, first thing there was Dean Kinard handing out diplomas. He seemed eager to plunge into the job.

"At the Z's up first," he called, flourishing his wastebasket full of white rolled documents. "The last shall be first tonight."

The Z's, a gleam in their eyes, rushed forward. There were two of them. To one he gave a diploma with a smile and a pat on the shoulder.
When the other contestant held out her hand, the dean paused and thought, "Wait a minute," he said, unrolling her dip. He read it and told it leisurely back together.

"You've passed with honors," he stuck the coveted paper into his coat pocket. "I'm sorry, but you can't have it," he said, "until I see you swim the length of the pool."
You haven't done that yet."

Miss Z, retired, her confusion covered by the onrush of the Y's.
"The Y's are wise," purred the dean. "They have met all requirements."
He rewarded them with diplomas; and a solitary Miss X came forward.

"Miss X is deficient in the history of education," announced the dean,
"but she has promised to read up on it this summer, and on that consideration, we are glad to graduate her."

The W's, V's, U's, T's and S's came forward and retired, successful.
There were no R's, so Miss Q came next.

"This girl cannot graduate with honors," the dean said kindly. "Her average was something like 80. That night, Miss Bissell?"

"No, no, dean," the registrar proceeded. "It was every bit of eighty-nine and two-hundredths."

The and-ones applauded and Miss
Q retired, blushing.

Then came the long line of P's, G's,
and on down to the M's, an unexpected procession, each marching up, taking the ribbon-tied roll from the smiling dean and heaving a retreat.
"E's." Time for Mary to go. With happy heart, she tripped to the platform.

"Are there any objections to this girl's receiving her diploma?" asked Dean Kinard.

Mary held her breath. Memories of numerous tardies, an unexcused absence, and frequent improper expressions rose up in a phantasm rush. Her head whirled.

"I object!" called a voice from the bosom of the faculty, and there arose thunderously.

"Good gracious! What are you doing, dreaming out here like a Lulu-the-Boy Blue. Do get up and come help me find my robe for ton-ite!"

And her roommate dragged her away.

"I was having a time getting my dip," Mary laughed. "Hope it won't be that hard tonight."

M. TRIBBLE.

SWAN THE LENGTH
Twas a sunny day in June
And all the world was gay.
Except a poor, sad Senior,
Who darkly clouded that day.

Her heart was filled with misery,
Her breast with dark despair,
For she must do a dreadful deed
To gain that sheepskin fair.

Then up she got and went
The length of the pond to swim,
From diving board to shallow part,
This was her task so grim.

She stood on the pool's white edge,
Her face fell visibly lower,
A long, hooked pole Miss Howell had
So snatched her from Death's door.

One supping hand she raised
To Heaven's starry dome,
The other clasped her bathing suit,
Where notions she had none.

One last, sad groan a timorous
splash,
She fell from the marble brink,
She touched the bottom, then rose again.

To make that last sad swim.

Full twenty quarts of pure aqua
That Senior said did swallow,
Alas, her breath was so far gone,
She couldn't even holler.

Three more times did she, gasping,
sink,
Before that swim was over.

And three times did the Angel Death Around that poor thing hover.
At last she reached her journey's end.
A watery, prostrate wreck.
Then in reached strong Miss R—
And drew her out by the neck.
Full joyful were the Physical Eds
To see her almost drowned.
They now could practice their first aid.

On the wreck upon the ground,
They brought her back to life (they said)
But, alas, the truth will out—
Tis but a pitiful ghost of a girl
That walks this college about.

Teacher: Make a sentence using the word "Moron."
Bright: Papa said sister couldn't go out till she put on her.

No matter how bad the weather,
the Winthrop church is in as "a blue streak in a cloudy sky."

To the Graduates

We want to extend to your our heartiest congratulations on your fine accomplishment of having earned a Winthrop diploma. In our humble judgment it represents the very best to be had in the realm of practical mental and physical training, and as the years go by the realization of its full value will unfold.

To those of you who have honored us with visits to our store during your stay, and to those who have not, we unhesitatingly say we're mighty sorry to see you go, and we hope you will have occasion to pay frequent visits to our city, at which time don't fail to come in to see us. A welcome awaits you.

And, remember, it doesn't matter where you go, or what your vocation, our best wishes for your happiness and success will be with you.

Farewell, Winthrop Girls!

We take this occasion to say good-bye to the Seniors and all our Winthrop friends and thank them for their patronage during the past session.

It will be a pleasure to greet all of you who are to return to Rock Hill.

Good-Bye and Good Luck!

As this is our last opportunity of doing so, we wish to thank everybody connected with Winthrop for the liberal patronage given us this session, which will soon come to a close. It has been a pleasure to serve you and we hope our treatment of you has justified the confidence placed in us. To those of you who will return, we wish a happy vacation and will look forward to your coming back in the fall. To those of you who will not return, we say "Good-Bye and Good Luck." We hope in the future you will make frequent visits to Rock Hill, at which time we invite you to make our store your headquarters. If there is anything we can do for you, don't hesitate to call on us.

MISS GERARDINE DILLA TO CONDUCE EUROPEAN TOUR

Miss Geradine P. Dilla, of the Fourth Fourth of Winthrop College, will sail June 12 to spend the summer in Europe. She will conduct her fifth party on a general European tour, visiting England, Scotland, Wales, Belgium, Holland, France, Switzerland, Monaco and Italy. Her party consists of 28 ladies and gentlemen, mostly graduates of American universities, several of whom will study in Europe after their tour. On the Fourth of July, the Dilla party will be the special guests of the Robert Browning settlement in London, which always celebrates our National Holiday. This year their entertainment will be a poetry reading by Wilfrid W. Gibson, the Wordsworth of today, who reads his poems for the Dilla party each summer in London.

Doctor—What you need is something to shock you, to stir up your emotions?
 Patient—Yes, doctor?
 Doctor—Well, or, I'll send you my bill in the morning?
